THE SOCIAL CALENDAR FOR THIS FRIDAY

The weekly dinner dance takes place at the Huaco club.

The Number Two society meets at the First Baptist church.

The Austin Avenue Missionary society has regular meeting.

The Columbus Avenue Baptist Aid meets in church parlors.

MISS MURPHY OF MISSOURI HAS CARD COMPLIMENT

Among the pleasant guests now in the city is Miss McBride from Missouri, who receives the hospitality of Mrs. Hoke on West Washington. Being a Phi Beta Phi, Miss McBride has been especially entertained by local members of this society. Each morning this week has found morning bridge in one of the Phi Beta homes. Miss McBride remains through July.

THE EVANGELIA SETTLEMENT IS FREE FROM DEBT

From her summer home in Tennessee, Mrs. R. G. Patton writes that the last of her public duties before leaving was to send check for the last indebtedness for the Evangelia Home. This seems little short of marvelous—that a few energetic, determined women, assisted by the generous public, should buy lots, build a commodious house, and relieve the debt in such a short time. Mrs. Patton writes to say that she has spread the good news of the fountain on the square, and that the civic society of Cleveland, Tenn., writes to know if it be possible for a fountain to be secured for their town.

MRS. CHESTER STORY IS CARD HOSTESS

In the parlors of Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. Chester Story was hostess to the Young Married Ladies' Euchre club.

To the Ladies and Gentlemen

It gives us great pleasure to see the ladies and gentlemen who are visiting us every day and who enjoy going through our new drug store, and the great gratification to us in hearing the words of praise from the people for our ice cream department in the basement. It is the cleanest place in the house. Everything sterilized every day in boiling hot Artesian water.

All of our tumblers, glasses, mugs and other vessels at the soda fountain are sent to the basement on the dumb waiter and are thoroughly washed there after each usage.

The fact that we have Artesian water from the Amicable's deep well is the thing that gives our visitors most pleasure, and we extend to everybody a cordial invitation to inspect our store and all of the various advantages it offers, whenever it suits them to do so. We are always ready.

Society Notes.

It is urgently requested that The Morning News editor be notified when regular meetings of women's organizations are adjourned for the season; otherwise these may continue to be reported in the days' calendar and cause confusion.

The visit of Mrs. Pat Dean is nearing its close. She and Mr. Dean expect to return home to St. Louis with early July. In the meantime Mrs. Dean returns home with Mrs. E. H. Harden to spend the coming week in Temple. Mrs. Harden has been with her daughter, Mrs. Lewis Early, for a few days.

Among changes recently noted, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker have joined the household of Mrs. Etta Renjek on Clay street.

Miss Eloise Fort has arrived from Virginia and will spend some time with her mother, Mrs. Walter Fort, on Washington street. Her arrival was premature in order that she might nurse the little brother, Aldredge, who has succumbed to typhoid fever.

Mrs. J. W. Evans has been in the first guests of Rev. and Mrs. Ebers in their new home in Little Rock. She will be only a passing visitor here, and continue to attend the Baptist campmeeting at Ft. Smith.

Nothing being too good nor metropolitan for the new hotel, one of the women here suggests that a pipe organ be one of the up-to-now pieces. This means recitals from town musicians for the dinner hours, or, perhaps, for the afternoon teas, if our women come to this phase of hotel life soon enough.

Look out for a surprise wedding announcement party within the next few days. One is to come, and the bride and groom are both in this city.

One phase in issuing invitations is sadly neglected among Waco hostesses. This is the duty of the hostess to state candidly when she invites her guests what she will have. One instance is recalled of an invitation, "I am having a little card party, will you come?" The afternoon proved threatening and the guest were indifferent clothes. She was amazed to be ushered into a game of fifteen table. Another instance finds the over-dressed woman. She was embarrassed, and so was her hostess, who saw that she expected more form than had been provided. The guest should honor her invitation by making an attractive costume, and the hostess owes it to herself as well as to her guests to tell exactly what entertainment she is providing.

After a few days with her sister, Mrs. Robert Dupree, Mrs. George Rotan is again in her Columbus street cottage. Mr. Rotan reached home from the Yale class reunion last night.

Why does not some one make glad the vacation days of the little ones at the orphanage by the gift of a sand pile, a jumping rope, or something for the playgrounds of this worthy institution. Has not some one lost a little one in whose memory they would be glad to make an orphan's heart and life happier?

We must all place a couch chair on our piazza. And more, it must have a pocket on the side into which the magazine can drop, and it would add to have a wide arm rest where the letter can be written with the fountain pen. Above all else, a comfortable life in the good old summer time.

Had you ever thought of the convenience in inserting the waste paper basket for a porch plant stand? Thus the plant can be moved to the porch, and the lawn is moved some paper trash.

If you are to have a summer trip, send post cards freely. They are such a refreshing sight in the morning post to the stay-at-homes.

And speaking of books, do read a few during the lulling days. Store the mind with some wholesome thought. Then you will have more to talk about than the neighbor's doings.

Recall that Mrs. Robert Dupree was the first Waco woman to drive her own automobile. Then it was a distinction. But think how many are at the wheel these days.

Society Personals.

Mrs. A. L. Brown of South Third street is upon the eve of departure for Glendale, Arizona, where she will visit Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Brown.

Among early departures will be that of the Mesdames William Johnson and J. L. Burgess for Colorado.

Miss Thelma Carroll, who has spent several weeks with Mrs. Walter King on Speight street, is leaving or her home in Beaumont with Sunday.

Miss Lurline Moseley, who is with Mrs. Lurline Moseley in West Washington, is returning home to Corsicana with Saturday.

The Misses Emmie and Lillian Westbrook of Laredo are visiting the Misses of the Mesdames Jones and Fraser, recent guests of Mrs. Howard Mann, are again at home in Dallas.

Miss Mercy Olesch of Fourteenth and Barton is at home from the Baraca convention in Nashville.

Mrs. J. M. McCalvey was a visitor to her mother, Mrs. James Horne, on the South Side last week. She is again at home in Temple.

Mrs. E. B. Garrett of Fourteenth and Jefferson is out of the city for the remainder of the season.

After today Mrs. Frank Allen will enjoy a visit from her mother, Mrs. Shapard, of Austin.

Miss Jane Cheek of North Thirteenth left on Wednesday for Idaho.

Mrs. John Mangum and Miss Mary Mangum are leaving today for San Antonio and Kerrville.

Mrs. W. E. Stetler left for her home in Dallas on Thursday. She had several days with Mrs. O. K. Stetler on Bosque boulevard.

Why not enjoy every Friday evening with a good supper and the usual good dance at the Arlington hotel, Marlin, Texas.—Adv.

WACO'S OPPORTUNITY.

"The Waco Morning News readily sees what great opportunities will be offered Waco if that city builds a pipe line to the gas fields in Mexico," says the Mexico Evening News editorially, noting our latest comment on the desirability of this city's business interests investigating fully every possible means of obtaining a natural gas supply, with the inducements such a supply carries for new industrial plants and for homeseekers—cheap fuel, cheap light, cheap heat. "What applies to Waco," continues our neighbor, "also applies to Mexico. Natural gas is a valuable asset to any town and the citizens of Mexico should not underestimate the value of cheap fuel in industrial enterprises to be located in our midst. If we have more gas than we need for our own use, then it would be neighborly in us to let Waco have it, but we must make an effort to secure some of those factories for ourselves."

It appears the Mexico field is ample and will continue to be ample to supply all the fuel and light and heat the homes and industries and stores of this city, as well as of the local community and towns between, will need for some years. Early last winter we suggested that the business organizations look to the natural gas proposition, discussing in some detail the conditions of obtaining this supply that were overcome for Dallas and Fort Worth, to which cities gas is piped from twice and thrice the distance Waco would be obliged to line now that the Mexico field presents such glowing prospects. We saw no impossibility in the suggestion then; certainly we see every possibility in it now. Mexico is willing; Waco's business interests should be eager to make the most of this big opportunity.

Houston happenings assure that we have with us still motorists who do not know locomotives will be on the job when they are forgotten.

AN "INDIAN POLICY" FOR INDIANS.

Hon. Cato Sells purposes doing a far, far better thing for the Indians than has ever been done for them—if we may so distort the quotation in phrasing and application. We believe this plan of making these charges of the government less charges in fact, of giving them some measure of independence and a deal more incentive to stable manliness and interest in life, will succeed thoroughly. For it deserves to succeed certainly. There is ability and much characteristic initiative in this beginning of the conduct of his office by our commissioner of Indian affairs.

The commissioner believes if the grazing lands of the reservations and agencies are well stocked with steers and milch cows and bulls—he has asked for bids on some 11,000 head—the Indians will profit greatly from raising and marketing stock, and, more, this "will develop their business ability and serve to make them citizens in fact as well as in name." In this belief Mr. Sells touches the very heart of the Indian problem of the past quarter-century, as we understand it. The difficulty has been to keep the remnant of the race employed, occupied and thus curb their restive nature and do what might be done to mitigate the injustice of treatment that has long been a stigma and reproach to our government. We hope fair dealing may eventuate for the Indians after these many years, enlightened treatment and sensible control. It is a far cry from their days of cattle raiding to the new era of usefulness in cattle raising, usefulness to themselves and to the regions wherein are their lands, and the opportunity to improve their condition is quite as wide. We are confident the new commissioner will make the most of the opportunity. We know of none more active generally at the task he has to do and more disposed to give the best of which he is capable to public service.

In considering the full worth of this plan to stock the lands, it is to stress particularly the feature of devoting the Indians' energies—or their possessions, to give the rightful description—to their own interests. The activity would embrace "thousands of acres of grazing lands heretofore leased to private individuals, and will necessarily mean the revocation of leases on part of the land now under private control," according to the commissioner. This is as it should be. It may not be true as to the present holdings of Indian lands, largely, by others, but it has been true that in the past this and other methods of disposal of the lands has been attended by the rankest injustice to the tribes and scandal for the government and its agents. It is no new contention that the Indian lands should be so ordered as to utilize them to the fullest value and resources in the interests of their real owners. There is emphasis of this condition in the commissioner's reminder that at present only a small revenue is received by the Indians for the use of these lands "and the new policy, in addition to developing their business capacity and their individuality, will benefit them to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars." The advantages this will carry, as to opportunities for education, communizing in modern methods, progress in the way of living, are obvious. The project is big in spirit and in possibilities, and it will justify the arduousness of its working out. And whether it was conceived by former incumbents of the Indian affairs commissionership, or whether Mr. Sells is to be credited with originating any part of it, if he shall succeed in carrying it through to these certain benefits he may be given praise unqualifiedly for the execution.

The hope that this business policy, a rare contrivance in the history of our guardianship of the Indians when it comes to genuine consideration of their well-being, will succeed, is general to the nation. There has been a no more crying need in the conduct of our federal bureau of Indian affairs than the promotion of and assistance on an enlightened method of giving the Indian an object in life, and permitting him thereby to retain some manly footing in the little that has actually been accorded him through three land-grabbing generations.

The attention of Cartoonist Goldsmith is directed to Texas's latest suicide who tied his toes to a shotgun trigger and removed his head.

PUT THE HOUSE IN ORDER.

There is a disposition to over-accuse, as we regard it, the Camille-Wilson-McReynolds feature of the business District Attorney McNab of San Francisco has been making such a fuss about. Cases have been postponed on less worthy grounds than the request of the head of a federal department, bigger cases than the white slavery charge indictments involving Commissioner Camille's son. But whether postponement should have been ordered by the attorney general at the request of the labor secretary in his commissioner's behalf, or not, there was not the faintest shade of justification of Mr. McNab's intimation that the head of the department of justice had acted unjustly and wrongfully in deferring trial of the white slavery indictments and the conspiracy charges against Western Fuel. We think the president showed mistaken kindness in accepting the resignation of the sensation-hungry, doubtless the politics-playing, Republican district attorney of San Francisco; he should have dismissed him, rather.

We think the country is satisfied, as Mr. Wilson is satisfied, with the explanation Mr. Attorney General McReynolds gave and the statement of Secretary Wilson. That the president has requested immediate trial of the cases in point does not, as we view it, discredit the attorney general's position or endorse Mr. McNab's. And we think the evil odor Mr. McNab attempted to stir up should have a very different effect than he intended. We think it should fix the president's attention on the fact—that it is a fact—that it is a mistaken policy to retain in office longer incumbents of different political faiths who have held over. We consider Mr. McNab's stinkpot hurled at the attorney general a rank attempt to discredit the administration. None doubts that the Republican party, seeking to reorganize and regain political control nationally, will leave no lane leading to possible discredit of the Democracy in power, unexplored. Republicans hold, in every land and clime: hookworm and mosquitos. If hookworms to blame, a long visit from the young commission at Austin should be arranged for by the Herald. If it's mosquitos, a species of ignorant tightwadness, the Herald should make a deal with Colonel Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald's squad of undertakers—those indispensable civilizers, resuscitators, revivifiers, removers of obstacles, city-building foundation engineers.

We think it is high time the president put his Democratic official house in order by sweeping out the Republican clutter not of his placing. What Mr. McNab has done will be repeated and again, we make no doubt, if Republican district attorneys and underlings of other administrative departments are permitted to remain in office and to intrigue officially. McNab's slur in the instance of the two officers of Western Fuel against whom the attorney general ordered indictments be not pressed at this time, was a palpable, shoddy political play. How often have Republican attorneys general and solicitors general refused to act on indictments returned by the efforts of Republican prosecutors? Mr. Wickham's attitude toward the indictments found in Dallas last year against officers of the Standard Oil and of Texas Oil companies—an attitude adhered to in the face of the federal judge's overriding of his first refusal to serve the defendants named—is a definite example of this. It is actually the custom for officers of the department of justice to withhold prosecution when they are in doubt as to the strength of evidence, and, especially, the culpability of defendants named. They have had their experiences, too, in dragging men into court prematurely.

Mr. McNab's weapon will boom, we hope. The president need only request the resignations of officials appointed anterior to his inauguration, and we are firmly convinced in the light of recent happenings, from the attitude of Republicans in the tariff bill situation, the lobby investigation, the administration's program and acts generally, down to this latest piece of indiscriminate antagonism in San Francisco, that the sooner Mr. Wilson cleans house the more salutary will the cleaning be for his administration and the public service generally.

Report is current that the Hon. Cato Sells may resign from the national committee by reason of his tenure of the Indian affairs commissionership. We hope he will not, and we see no reason why he should. Our state election law in no way makes the holding of federal office a bar to election by the state convention to this highest political committee; not is there any federal prohibition on government officials to this effect. Judge Sells, as Texas's national committeeman during the campaign, served with unusual distinction and brought credit to the state for his zealous, unflinching skill in organization and money-raising. Members of congress and officials at Washington serve on political committees, and Judge Sells should not consider relinquishing this position by reason of his later appointment. We trust his new duties will not compel his retirement from the committee. Especially, as a member of the executive committee of the important body in control of the party's affairs, Judge Sells is on the ground and closely in touch with the immediate policy of direction. This is an advantage for the Texas member that must appeal to him surely, and we will be glad to hear that, like other federal officials who are his colleagues on the national committee, he will decide to continue in his share of this responsibility.

The oil companies suit appears to be seeing Texas as generally as Texas is watching the suit.

Texas Viewpoints

Common Complaint.

So much confidence has the Whitesboro Herald in the natural merits and resources of Whitesboro, it ventures the statement that the old town will double in population within the coming twelve months—if it is the old, familiar, address-fraught "if." Its use is necessitated by the fact that Whitesboro should have 10,000 inhabitants now, according to the Herald, and would have "if there had been the proper energy put behind it at the proper time." But, since it is never too late to do good, if the townspeople will get busy and "put the necessary steam behind" the boom, population-doubling-double-quick will be the result. It would appear from this that Whitesboro has been held back by one or both of these common complaints, or epidemics; the first of these flourishes in the warm region of the Southwest and the other is to be found in every land and clime: hookworm and mosquitos. If hookworms to blame, a long visit from the young commission at Austin should be arranged for by the Herald. If it's mosquitos, a species of ignorant tightwadness, the Herald should make a deal with Colonel Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald's squad of undertakers—those indispensable civilizers, resuscitators, revivifiers, removers of obstacles, city-building foundation engineers.

To Be Avoided.
Referring to the seizure of infantile paralysis, more extensive locally than in any other Texas community, Four States Press of Texasiana expresses the hope that city "will never be given any more free advertising of the past weeks. This can be avoided by proper co-operation on the part of the city officials and citizens with the health officials." The disastrous feature of epidemics—apart, of course, from the death list—is the suspicion these arouse that a city is wholly unhealthy. The sort of co-operation Four States Press rightly calls for can be enforced, under the law, and in cities visited by epidemics, nine cases in ten, there has been no such enforcement. Sometimes an epidemic results in putting life and killing the fourflush in the health board, but more often health boards of the sort responsible for the neglect of conditions that ran their course to an epidemic are beyond hope. Some day all Texas cities will understand the necessity of paying their health officers more than their mayors and of getting health officers worth paying anything. Too many health boards do little more than meet periodically, talk and adopt resolutions that there may be something for the minutes. Too many health officers are more adept at using their official jobs to promote their private practices and ferreting out compliments on their supposed public service than they are in searching and correcting insanitation and deleterious methods of supplying the public with food. A health board and its inspectors and physicians who dare to do their duty, even unto applying the torch, is the greatest asset any city can have. A healthy city means a city that will grow rich and populous.

Godliness—For a Consideration.

The Dallas Times Herald remarks that Billy Sunday was presented with a check for $10,000 for his services in a ten weeks' revival at South Bend—but "it's worth something to be forced to remain in South Bend." Maybe. But Billy of the wild conversation and defaming proclivities doesn't care what town he works, does he? He took some $23,000 from the mining region of Wilkes-Barre for seven weeks of prosing agenting of the eternal summer resort—from a horde of laboring men. South Bend and San Francisco look alike to William when there are souls to be saved—of course, it's only that there are souls to be saved. We admit our preference for Jeremiah and John the Baptist in the original.

Seen Told.

Representative J. P. Buchanan of Brenham is held up to admiration by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as being "in a list of ten 'modest' new representatives who hollered down their autobiographies for the Congressional Directory to twenty-one words or less." Mr. Buchanan used but twenty words "to say where he came from and by whose authority." Perhaps that is commendable. But are there not members of congress who could put the whole obvious truth in, say, ten words, thus: "Smith, Y. Z. Squeedunk, Vt. 45. Politician and Chronic Officeholder?"

The Newspaper Law.

(San Antonio Light.)
The United States supreme court has affirmed the validity of the so-called "newspaper publicity law," which requires all newspapers in the United States to publish twice every year a list of their stockholders together with a statement of their indebtedness and other private affairs that are the concern of no person save those directly and financially interested in the newspapers.

The court takes the ground that the law is simply a postal regulation which the government has a right to demand before admitting the newspapers to the mails. The court further says that regulation of the mail service is its object and that the interference with the press is only incidental.

With all due respect to the learned gentlemen who compose the supreme court of the United States, it is somewhat difficult to understand, and it would, no doubt, greatly amuse the postmaster general, to point out how the publication of the names of stockholders in a private corporation has anything to do with the regulation of the mails, and why, if it applies to newspaper ownership, it does not apply to other ownerships of any and every character.

The fact is, the law was conceived entirely in a spirit of revenge against certain newspapers, and it is a piece of class legislation that is utterly bad in principle and in substance. There is no reason why the newspapers of the United States are subject to laws governing the operation of corporations, partnerships and private ownership. Being subject to these laws they are also entitled to the protection of them, and in this instance it has been denied to them.

It is to be hoped that when the people of the United States elect a national assembly of representatives and senators, the members of which have sufficient intelligence to understand a few elementary propositions, that the law will be repealed.

The San Antonio Light itself has no objection whatever to the publication of the names of its stockholders, but it does present a law demanding that a proceeding as an impertinent intrusion on the fundamental rights of American citizens and as a vicious specimen of class legislation. The law was conceived in a narrow spirit, and is without one redeeming feature. It does harm to the newspapers and it was the object of its sponsors that it should be so.

Three High New York Police Officers Who Died of Worry Since Craft Inquiry Began

CAPTAIN THOMAS F. WALSH.

INSPECTOR JOHN H. RUSSELL.

Capt. Thomas F. Walsh, police captain, who commanded graft in connection with four inspectors, and thereby caused their conviction and imprisonment, died the other day. But he is not the only high police official in New York who has died of worry since Herman Rosenthal, loose tenderloin gambler, was murdered.

Inspector "Chester" George McCluskey, the highest uniformed officer on the New York force—died a few months ago. McCluskey was believed by many persons to be worth between $500,000 and $600,000, though during his career he had thirty years on the force, his salary columns were written about him after the graft investigation began.

John H. Russell was believed by many persons to have been an honest cop. But trouble with Rosenthal, when the gambler was in Rosenthal's district on the east side, was the beginning of his worry. Rosenthal would not close his pool rooms, and Russell did not seem able to make him do so. District Attorney Jerome, however, made Rosenthal promise he would close his place at any time. That made Russell ridiculous. Then he was demoted from inspector to captain because there was some suspicion about him. Worry brought on his death finally.

Each of these men was strong and healthy, in appearance, at least. Any of them ought, with proper care, and none of them abused himself, to have lived to a very old age. But they couldn't stand worry of graft and graft charges.

Local articles and other books which would make a liberal shelf in the library of light literature. Although a literary man, he is fond of country life as his writings show, and like John Randolph of Roanoke, is never happier than when horseback riding in his native state.

He is a man of ample means, has built a beautiful house in Washington, and is a member of the prominent clubs in Washington and New York. He will be the dean of the American diplomatic corps so far as age and reputation are concerned. He has never been in public life, and like the president, himself, soon abandoned law for literature. In spite of the fact that he carries no official title up to this time, he ranks in the minds of all as the first gentleman of Virginia.

What a glorious experience a life in Italy will be for a man like Thomas Nelson Page! Italy with its art treasures and its glorious literature, and Rome with its magnificent traditions, the world has a right to expect sketches more notable even than those of John Hay, who dwelt so long in Rome, and who enriched our Spanish literature with the finished pages of "Old Castilian Days."

CATO SELLS IS A VISITOR HERE

COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS IN WACO TO SEE COL. MCCOLLUM.

GLAD TO LEARN OF GOOD CROPS

Which Will Put the Country on Fine Basis—To Help the Indians.

Of crops and their bearing on the democratic party's continuance in power, was Hon. Cato Sells, commissioner of the bureau of Indian affairs, disposed to converse with many friends who called on him yesterday noon and last night in the New State House, but he had little to say of the policies he will inaugurate or promote as commissioner, apart from the reservations with cattle. His present course, he said, must be largely one of "looking and listening," and to do both he will within six or eight weeks go through the reservations, accompanied by the necessary staff—interpreters, an expert or two on the Indian situation and a stenographer.

The commissioner's visit here yesterday was wholly one of friendship. Learning since he arrived at his home in Ciebume that Editor A. R. McCollum of the Waco Tribune had undergone in Nashville a successful operation for cataract, he came down to spend an afternoon with him. In conversation at the hotel, Judge Sells spoke of Mr. McCollum as the "Nestor of Texas journalism" and said he had heard so many expressions of their gratification that Mr. McCollum's eyesight may be greatly improved that it was good to know how general was the esteem and affection he himself felt for the veteran editor.

"The most pleasant feature of my return to Texas at this time," said the commissioner, "and also the most significant condition I have noticed in Texas and elsewhere, is that there will be splendid crops. That is all-important. For the past twenty years (and the commissioner smiled broadly) the republicans have laid claim to everything under the sun and have endeavored to shift the responsibility for anything that was not good in the nation's course generally. Now the republicans are crying calamity will be the result of the administration's program of tariff revision and currency reform. With good crops, which mean general prosperity, to come after the president has disposed of these two great questions, there is every assurance that the democratic party will continue firmly in power."

"Mr. Wilson," Judge Sells continued warmly, "is directing the nation with great statesmanship; he is scholarly, patriotic and courageous, and none who is watching closely and honestly the progress of the administration, can doubt a splendid era is beginning for the country and for the party."

To Make Indians Less Dependent.
Referring, when questioned, to the announcement, lately detailed in these columns, that he had asked for bids on about 11,000 head of stock for the Indian lands, the commissioner said he was thoroughly sanguine of the success of the plan, in point of making the Indians less dependent on government's personal care, particularly as giving them a government business to which they could devote themselves with profit and to the bettering of character and encouraging of individual independence. He said revocation of lands under lease will be reasonable and that the Indians will be working an incentive. He suggested also that sufficient stress may not have been laid on the requirement that the purchase of all cattle for this purpose, in Texas or elsewhere, must conform with the quarantine regulations strictly.

Questioned concerning the report that he might resign from the national committee by reason of his appointment, Judge Sells said he could not discuss the matter at this time, but from other clues to him it is understood he will, if compatible with his duties, most likely retain this position, as there is no legal objection to his serving on the committee because of the federal office he holds.

The commissioner left here last night and will return to Washington from his headquarters on Saturday. In his remarks to all who called on him he evinced much enthusiasm for the duties of his office and said he considered there is opportunity for service that will be of benefit to the government generally by the administration of the great property under his charge in the Indian lands of some 300,000 Indians in the west. He referred cordially to the attitude of his chief, Secretary of the Interior Lane, to the work of the bureau.

Dies from Baseball Blow.
Texarkana, Texas, June 26.—Guy Moore, a member of a prominent family of Dallas, Texas, and a prosperous farmer near there, was struck on the right temple by a pitched ball yesterday afternoon in a baseball game there and, though unconscious for a few minutes, he later continued in the game. Moore was found unconscious in bed late yesterday afternoon and died this morning. He is survived by a widow and infant child who are visiting in Austin. Moore was 30 years of age.

of Waco, McGregor would feel that something had gone wrong.

Crate Dalton next introduced Judge J. G. Wren, who spoke of McGregor as one of the clearest towns in the state, and a miniature city alive to the advantages of united commercial effort.

J. W. Higgins, the hotel builder of Waco, insisted that he was the youngest man in the crowd, and to demonstrate his age limit as only 22 years he danced the light fantastic on a dry goods box.

McGregor is a growing little town of about 6000 inhabitants. The business and residence districts are substantially building up, and progress seems to be the keynote. There are about forty-five business houses, the majority of which are brick.

Among those who met the Wacoans were J. B. Naler, Miss Irene Hamilton, B. A. Bailey, Rev. G. A. Henderson of the Central Presbyterian church, J. B. Westerfield, city attorney; N. W. Yeager, E. C. Breeding, Miss Mattie Harris, Miss Grace Harrison, T. W. Hall, E. J. Thomason, Miss Sara Boggs, Frank Smith, Glenn Crain, A. T. Henry, M. E. Hackney, W. G. Whitten, M. S. Sewell, A. J. Sewell, mayor; R. L. Bewley.

At Oglesby.

Within a single year Oglesby, the next stop, has built up from a lumber and frame town to a little city of brick. There is hardly a store that has not been replaced within the last year by substantial structures of this material.

T. O. Reid, postmaster, remarked that Oglesby would soon make Waco a close race for first place in Central Texas.

There are about thirty-five stores here, a well constructed bank building and a postoffice. The residence part of the town, while not advancing as rapidly as the business district, has undergone many improvements.

The following were at the station when the boosters arrived: T. O. Reid, Sam C. Reid, Sam Hancock, H. D. Edwards, R. R. Roe, W. F. Hurley, R. M. Casey, Walter Hancock, J. R. Huddleston, S. F. Ross, Will Pennington, J. A. Stevenson, justice of the peace. Each proved himself to be very much alive and desirous of firmly cementing the commercial ties and bonds of friendship that unite their town to Waco, the Central Texas metropolis.

At Leon Junction.

Leon Junction, the largest town on the Cotton Belt in the south end of "Leon Bottom," shifted its center of population to the station several hours before the arrival of the "linen duster special." When the train arrived and the excursionists disembarked, they surged around with outstretched hands, anxious to demonstrate their pleasure at a visit from the "mother city."

Here the Baylor band, as at all previous stops, entertained every one with "Oh, You Great Big Beautiful Doll," and other latter day patriotic airs. Langdon Leedle and Will Burrows bunched together for their amusement. The trade evengals were welcomed by A. A. Harper, Joe Cavitt, R. L. McAdams, W. R. Cavitt. The latter has been in the mercantile business here for a number of years.

At Mound.

At Mound, a thriving little town several miles further down the line, the Wacoans were met by C. V. Davidson, W. L. Green, C. B. Bowens, L. A. Davidson, Edna Draper, Zayda Draper, W. C. McHargue, J. E. Lowery, W. C. Blanchard, L. M. Mayberry, G. P. McHargue, J. Q. Davidson, Jennie Davidson, W. F. Green, Henry Coleman, J. D. Hearn, M. D. Hill, Ed Lawrence, Clarence Lawrence, Will Lawrence, S. C. Folsom, Woodward White, Mrs. J. C. Davidson.

A short address was made here by Crate Dalton, and the Baylor band played several selections.

At Gatesville.

At Gatesville the boosters met with a cordial reception. They were taken in charge at the station by a committee, going in automobiles and backs to the courthouse square, where Mayor Tom Mears received them with a short, pithy address. He was introduced to the boosters by J. J. D. Cobb, an attorney of Gatesville.

He threw open the little city to the excursionists. They were invited "to do what they wanted to, to speak as they desired, to think as they pleased, but to come back to Gatesville again."

Speaking for the Waco contingent, Crate Dalton, an old Coryell county boy, explained the purpose of the trip, what it meant to Waco and what Waco could do for Gatesville. He urged the furtherance of business and personal relations.

He was followed by Walton D. Taylor, J. W. Blake and Roy E. Lane of Waco.

With the promise of an electric street railway, the assurance of two new office buildings, costing $10,000 and $15,000, and the issuance of bonds for a $25,000 new brick school, Gatesville is rapidly forging to the front.

E. L. Hall of Taylor has offered to put in the trolley system, which will comprise several blocks of railway. It will run from the Cotton Belt depot, a new brick building of Mission style of architecture, and one of the extensions of the city limits, to the courthouse square through the business section of the town.

The boosters were entertained in real Y. M. B. L. fashion by Frank Battle, grocery, who recently went into business for himself here after a long residence in Waco. He served punch and cake to the visitors.

According to the last census, Gatesville had only 2000 people. With the extension of the city limits, the number of inhabitants now totals 2500.

Only a short stop was made at

Levita, a thriving little town of probably 150 inhabitants a few miles beyond. Levita boosters are: C. P. Mayes, W. C. Mills, B. E. Griffin, R. L. Melburn, Jim Russell, Gus Wolf, Vinnie Thomas, "Boss" Anderson, B. E. Griffin, Will Rutherford.

At Ireland.

While Ireland does not figure large in the adding machine aggregate, population regarded, the business men have shown a long-headedness in building their little city. With the exception of about three or four of the buildings devoted to commercial uses are of brick and concrete.

The town is proud of its name, and its people do not overlook opportunities to flaunt the emerald. It will be remembered the contingent which attended the Cotton Palace from this place last year proved themselves live wires of an electrical degree.

It is well situated in a good farming country, with a general altitude of 1100 feet. Its trade territory embraces something like 100 square miles, it is claimed. Fruits, vegetables and grains of the plump, full-matured kind are raised here.

Among those who acted on the reception committee were: G. W. Brady, Mrs. G. W. Brady, Dr. L. A. Chancellor, Dr. J. M. Thompson and J. B. Carl.

At Hamilton.

"Eats" and Hamilton will always be closely associated with each other, when Waco boosters recall their trip to the county seat of Hamilton county. It was here that the ancient and accepted order of "feeding" was staged.

The lunch was provided by the Women's Civic league, the proceeds from which will be used in municipal improvement. The menu was varied, but one that appealed. There was "fo-de-wah" chicken, cold meats, salads, different "fixings" and cake and ice cream. The whole was well served by the young ladies who waited on the tables, and the visitors saw that it was taken care of.

Aside from its dinner serving privileges, the Women's Civic league is very much of a wide-awake institution. The organization is less than six months old, but in that short time it has accomplished a good deal toward improving the little town. It was organized with Mrs. D. Langford as president. The officers on the governing board now are Mrs. Lela Allen, president and Miss Fathie Corrigan, secretary.

Dinner over, the visitors were taken over the business section, where they met old friends and formed new acquaintances.

Although Hamilton has been upon the railroad only a few years, the growth has been remarkable. It is a town of well built stores and residences; there is a completely equipped telephone exchange, a light plant and a good water plant, two weekly newspapers, ice cream factory, bottling works, flour mill and elevator; oil mill and compress; ice plant and three gins.

The commercial organization of the town is the Hamilton Boosters' club. The membership is about 30. It is a place where members were in charge of the reception tendered to the Waco contingent. Officers of the club are: Joe H. Eldison, president; Bert Perry, vice president; A. E. Rankin, secretary; R. B. Miller, treasurer. The organization is about a year old.

Those who met the boosters and assisted in their entertainment were: J. J. Applewhite, G. J. Arnett, L. O. Peck, J. E. Beck, E. H. Baker, Dr. W. T. Bolding, Rev. T. Booth, John Boyd, G. H. Boynton, Q. Bruck, L. D. Brant, Sam Carlton, F. M. Carter, J. M. Chambliss, H. E. Chesley, W. R. Clauch, J. J. Cleveland, A. J. Collier, R. C. Cornelius, W. E. Danahy, Sam Davis, W. B. DeShazo, J. J. Durham, Sr., J. J. Durham, Jr., John E. Edmonson, Mrs. J. A. Eldison, A. M. Edmonson, R. Eldison, Clyde Granbury, Mrs. F. M. Graves, Walter Hart, W. W. Yates, B. E. Watson, Jule Turner, Captain Watson, B. E. West, Claude West, Porter West, Lee West, Walter West, W. M. White, A. H. Williams, L. W. Williams, F. C. Williams, J. A. Williams, J. E. Williams, J. A. P. Price, Joe Poston, Rev. H. R. Overcash, C. A. McNally, L. T. Moses, William Moore, Marvin Mason, Sam Lloyd, John Little, W. L. Lemmons, Charles Lawson, J. K. Kahler, L. W. Koen, C. J. Johnson, E. A. Jordan, Joe James, John Hunt, C. E. Horton, Dr. Will Hoddy, Elmore Heddy, Mrs. F. M. Graves, Clyde Grandbury.

At Lamkin.

But few people were out at Lamkin, and little preparation had been made for the reception of the Waco delegation. On the handful that met the train was Postmaster W. W. Jennings, who extended a cordial welcome.

At Gustine.

Over fifty Gustineites were waiting to greet the boosters. The Gustine band, an organization of fourteen pieces, played welcoming airs. Elijah Wyatt is director of the band.

H. H. Watson addressed the excursionists, expressing the pleasure that the visit afforded the citizens. J. W. Higgins replied. The visitors were invited to stay for the annual picnic in the afternoon, given by the Gustine Park association, but it was necessary to decline the invitation on lack of time.

Gustine has a population of 900, a number of stores and an excellent public school system.

The following met the excursionists: Prof. Jess Odell, H. H. Watson, M. G. Cotter, A. G. Campbell, T. A. Pettit, Tutti Wilder, J. W. Robertson, J. W. Moore, members of the Gustine Improvement club and others.

At Comanche.

After all there is something in a name. Both Waco and Comanche take their names from tribes of Indians who refused to be won over, and who would not "stay put." Comanche the little city from Missouri of Central Texas. The contingent from Waco, however, did its share of the "showing," and Comanche was not behind on the exhibition grounds.

Forming in two long lines, the boosters from the "mother city" marched from the depot to the court house square, the Baylor band playing two-steppy music, and Crate Dalton and Frank Trau in front leading the way with linen dusters floating behind them like tails of comets. Grouping, the pictures of the red-hatted bunch with a scattering of Comanches was taken. The party then separated, visiting the various stores and establishments of the town.

Gathering again at the square, all were served supper by the Women's Civic Club of which Mrs. J. P. Hoff is president. Although dinner had been eaten at Hamilton but five hours before, the meal soon vanished. "Comanche stew," chicken and all.

The opening address was made by Prof. R. F. Holloway, head of the school system, who was introduced by President J. R. Eames of the Commercial Association.

He paid both towns a well turned compliment by reminding the citizens of both that both had been named for a tribe of Indians, who knew no master, and who were supreme in their dominion. He pointed out that in percentage of actual attendance of school children that Comanche led Waco, the even though Waco leads Comanche in all else. While the school census only gives Comanche a total enrollment of 756, actual attendance showed 276 children in the schools. Using the last as a basis, he declared that Comanche's percentage was 130 per cent, a matter of some forty per cent ahead of the metropolis of Central Texas. The Waco percentage is about ninety and one of the highest in the state.

The little town of Comanche is situated in a fertile country, the crops are varied, and the uses to which the land may be put is almost unlimited. The town itself is of the hustler brand, its watchword is "Now."

Located there are a number of business houses of brick construction, two or three combination office buildings, two railroads, each with passenger stations above the average; commercial club, six department stores, weekly newspaper, and a number of minor but growing institutions. The school system is recognized to be one of the best in towns in the state of its class. The combined resources of the town are placed at $750,000. Postoffice receipts last year aggregated $11,000. Population, according to the last census, is 4,000. It is accredited with being the best mule market west of Fort Worth.

The Chamber of Commerce has proven itself a live organization; it has done much to build up the town. The president is J. R. Eames, while M. J. Sulphur is secretary. Members of the receiving committee of the chamber having the arrangements for the entertainment in charge were: J. P. Hoff, S. P. Smith, E. W. Harris, Tom Bell and George L. Sullivan.

When the time came for the Waco boosters to leave the old Indian-named town, practically the whole of the citizenship accompanied them to the train; linen dusters and frock coats swished together; old business and personal friends walked arm in arm—the ties that were cemented last year were renewed, and the personal contact was re-established. The long train thundered out to the tune of "Comanche" whoops.

Among Comanche boosters out yesterday were:

H. L. Ardis, Dr. A. E. Acton, Edgar Blue, W. G. Bolding, J. A. Batts, G. A. Bruton, M. G. Catter, M. P. Cain, J. J. Cadenhead, Frank Clark, Dr. I. T. Clemons, J. P. Crow, R. T. Cunningham, E. T. ### Building Permits.

Since the issuance of city building permits has been delayed for their application, the department has been complaining at the neglect of prospective builders to get the required permits. A firm registered against a contractor yesterday for his failure to procure a permit, and the authorities say that the law will be strictly enforced. The permits are issued at the city hall, and the applicant must call at the secretary's office as formerly.

Yesterday the following permits were issued.

William Cameron and Co., Eighth between Franklin and Mary streets, remodeling; estimated cost $3500.

Edward Sweeney, 611 North Eighth street, repairs on shed; estimated cost $200.

Says Special Agents Stay in Court Room and Spy on Conduct of the Judiciary.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 26.—"Criticism of the department of justice for arbitrary espionage or investigation of federal judges by means of examiners," by Judge Emery Speer, United States judge for the southern district of Georgia, was the feature of the annual session of the Iowa State Bar association.

Where is the Authority?

"True, the attorney general can act at any time and make any accusation he thinks proper, as can any citizen. But he can not compel the government to provide detail the officials, utilize the machinery and expend the money of the government in inquisitorial examinations of a judge, appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate, who holds office for a definite period of behavior? Where is the constitutional right or statutory authority?"

"Who is the examiner of the department of justice?"

"I have looked in vain through the statutes and the definition of his duties. This critic and censor or judges need not be a practitioner or even a lawyer. For many years, however, I have observed that they were restricted to examination and reports on the salaries and expenses of disbursing officers, most of whom are directly appointed by the department of justice and who, of course, should be responsive thereto. Now, however, they assume functions infinitely graver, namely, to examine and report on the three-fold distribution of power under the American system. The coun-

This method is very, very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial vigor. With experience of four years in the service of the United States, I declare that no other proceeding can be so destructive of the confidence and spirit accorded the judges of the United States. It is proper with the district judge it is equally proper with the judges of the supreme court of the United States. It is the least dignified of the judges of the court, least interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court and the convictions have been taken into consideration by the judges at the mercy, not only of the judges but of the subordinate of an executive department. It is a continental and not an American method. Aye, it is more Russian than American.

"Then, too, there is no end to it. Will the attorney general longer permit such continuous torture to be or investigation of a judge, made by examiners, as they are termed, of the department of the attorney general, constitute mal-treatment of American judges with cruel and apparently callous indifference to their reputation and good name.

Speak impersonally and with a due deference and respect for the head of a department who is ex-officio leader of the American bar. He is also the leading counsel for the government, and no man should be so presumptuous as to doubt his thought and language, however completely non-partisan he may be. Bought any lawyer to have inequal power over the judge who is to try his case, and least of all should he be allowed to influence the independence of the judiciary, the very foundation stone of the national structure? Is it not indeed intolerable that the lawyer who is the born gentlemen with the judge, and he was obliged, unwillingly, to pay their debts. As the quid nunc of the community are on the alert. The examiner is a person of large importance. He seems to hold the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand.

To Tell County Attorney of Violation of State Laws

Anti-Saloon League Officers Tour North
Second Street Collecting Evidence.
Want Vice Commission.

Responding to a summons from County Attorney John McNamara, Dr. S. A. Smith, district agent of the Anti-Saloon League, Rev. I. S. Boyles, superintendent of the Downtown Mission, and several companions who accompanied them on a tour of North Second street, will this morning be witnesses in an ex-parte hearing to determine whether there have been violations of law.

This fact was brought out yesterday at the meeting of the Anti-Saloon League, which was held under a call issued by Dr. A. J. Barton, county chairman. In addition to the developments that were brought out at the meeting, the action taken was to authorize Dr. Barton to appoint a committee of seven or nine to consider whether there should be a request made to the city commission that the mayor appoint a vice commission, to make a thorough investigation of conditions in Waco as to all forms of law violation.

When Dr. Barton called the meeting to order his audience consisted of about twenty persons, among whom were Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university; Rev. P. H. Faulk, pastor of the East Waco Baptist church; Rev. I. S. Boyles, superintendent of the Downtown Mission; Dr. S. A. Smith, district agent; Prof. T. H. Claypool, and one negro minister, Dr. J. W. Strong.

Dr. Barton's Remarks.

Dr. Barton said: "One of the chief reasons for the calling of this meeting is to call your attention that Dr. S. A. Smith, formerly state agent of the Anti-Saloon League of Louisiana, but now district agent here, and it is well for you to know him. We ought to have meetings from time to time to keep the sentiment of law enforcement alive and the sentiment of the abolition of this traffic and its kindred evils."

Dr. Barton spoke of the saloons as the "special privilege class," and said the law enforcement people wanted to see that the special privilege class keeps within the privileges.

"Some of the officers are very much stirred up because I said in the paper in this call that there were law violations. We want to let all the officers know that we stand ready to back them and that we are ready to remind them of their duty. I have had two conferences in the last twenty-four hours with one of the officers and he was very much surprised that anyone would think the law was being violated. Comptroller Lane's attention was called to a certain violation here. He wrote to this saloon man and he very quickly hurried to the telephone office to wire him that practice had been discontinued. I said to an officer over the phone today that I understood there is a whole section of the town that is given over to law violations. I do not know whether this violation is with the connivance of the officers, but I do know it is under their eyes. Possibly it is by a system of periodical fines. I would like the officers to find out if this periodical fining is going on."

Dr. S. P. Brooks.

Dr. Brooks said: "If there is anything I am willing to do as a private citizen I am willing to do it. I will do anything that is pointed out to me that I can do."

Dr. Barton—"Suppose we were to decide to ask the mayor to appoint a vice commission to go into the study of conditions, would you endorse it?" Dr. Brooks—"If it is practicable I would like to see it done. I would not want to go off half cocked on an expression, but the principle you suggest is an admirable one."

Pastor P. H. Faulk said that during the anti-submission campaign in 1911 he went through the restricted district with a policeman as his guide and that he found thirty-four illicit liquor sellers. Last Saturday night my wife and I, in company with a teacher of the high school and a teacher of a Sherman school, drove through the district. We did this just to see what the situation is. I told them to be prepared for almost anything and I want to tell you it was awful. Men were coming in and out of the houses like bees working in a hive; the hacks do a thriving business between the Katy depot and North Second street, and as the farmers got off the train they were hauled out there and unloaded in dark passages that are dark for a purpose. The time has come when this situation must be dealt with. I do not know the attitude of the present mayor, but I was told two years ago by the police there was an agreement they could sell liquor there as long as they did not sell on Sunday. I do not know the attitude of this administration. I will join any movement that will eliminate the Redlight district."

Rev. I. S. Boyles.

Rev. I. S. Boyles said: "I know personally about this illicit traffic and I have the witnesses to prove that certain parties have been selling beer. I have the women's names (and here he pulled out his note book); I have the number of houses and the name of the street and the specific instances. I can swear that we bought it from the women and I am to be at the court house Friday morning at 9 o'clock to tell about it."

Dr. S. A. Smith.

Dr. S. A. Smith, the district agent of the Anti-Saloon League, "We have thirteen cases and in two or three cases we got both beer and whiskey. We made this tour from May 23 to some time in June, not only on week nights, but on Sunday."

Dr. Barton—What did you pay for the beer and whiskey?

Dr. Smith—We paid $1 a bottle for the beer and 25 cents a drink for the whiskey. This is just incidental. When you destroy this illicit liquor traffic you destroy the bad houses.

Dr. Barton—How is this liquor delivered to those places?

One of the witnesses—it is taken down there in these little job wagons about the streets. It is not delivered by the beer wagons.

Dr. Barton—Would it be possible for a policeman or a deputy sheriff to see this being taken down there?

Dr. Smith—Yes. I ran almost into a policeman there.

Has Reported to Lane.

Dr. Smith told of the many states in which he has worked and of his experience in Germany. He says he knows the taste of beer and that he is satisfied that he bought beer on this tour. He said: "For the size of this city it cannot be equalled between here and the Esophorus for its shamelessness, and I want to say that it is not all confined to Two street. One woman told me that she drank a keg in a night. The saloons in this city are screened. I have instructions from Mr. Lane what to do and I have put it in his hands. I have submitted to him proof on the closing law. We are in the midst of the lawless liquor traffic doing as it pleases. There are pool rooms in connection with saloons."

Compare today's methods of baking with the old days when Aunt Dinah used sour milk and soda and baked on the open hearth, and you'll find wonderful improvements. The most wonderful of these modern helps is—

CALUMET Baking Powder

Surprisingly better than any other brand. Never a disappointment. Your biscuits will be light and sweet—Your cakes will raise evenly and will retain that moist delicate sweetness for days. Calumet cakes don't dry out quickly. Calumet costs less than the Trust made kind—yet it's better—costs a little more than the cheap "Big-Can" brands, but it is worth the difference. Every spoonful does its work perfectly—no failures—no waste.

Buy a Can from your grocer today and watch your baking troubles disappear. If you don't get Calumet, you don't get the best.

You don't save money when you buy cheap or big-can baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to sour milk and soda.

I have seen students buying liquor in bawdy houses."

Negro Preacher's Views.

Rev. J. W. Strong, the negro preacher, who was present, said: "These evils ought to be blotted out and if the good people here know the conditions they would rise up and blot it out. The race to which I belong will be guided by what you do. We have been following you a long time and have not yet got to where we can be independent. I feel that I have as much right here as any of you as I am in as much danger."

Dr. Barton—We have not forced ourselves on the officers. They sent for us and they are greatly distressed to know that these things exist.

Before the meeting adjourned Dr. Smith and Dr. Boyles were instructed to continue their work, and the motion was passed to appoint the committee to decide whether to ask the mayor for a vice commission.

Which flows from the bowels of Mother Earth a pure, sparkling liquid, mineralized by God's own hand, for the needs of suffering humanity. It cures all manner of diseases, as thousands will testify; and it does not need even "Rochelle Salts" to aid it in performing the magical cures. This water baffles the scientific world as to how and why it acts so. It is one of God's mysteries, and man has only one thing to do—DRINK and BE HEALED.

When the German kaiser reviewed his athletic sons and daughters on the afternoon of Sunday, June 8, he officially opened one of the greatest temples dedicated to sport in the world's history. The German Olympic stadium, situated in the beautiful suburb of Grunewald, on the western side of the great city of Berlin, is destined to be the stage of the greatest athletic meet that has ever been fought out between the nations. It was built long in advance of the Berlin Olympiad of 1916 for several reasons; the main one being to arouse the youth of the fatherland so that Germany will try her mightiest to excel other nations in the feats of strength, speed, and skill that will make up the Olympic contests three years hence. The Berlin stadium, unlike any other in existence, is built into an excavation, so that the greater part of the entire structure is below the surface level of the ground. It is built of cement, and contains accommodations for about 30,000 spectators. There are 2208 box seats, 12,232 arena seats, and accommodations for 12,470 standees, which, added to the 3000 capacity of the special stand for the swimming events, brings the total capacity up to about 30,000.

The arena measures 110 metres by 70 metres, and it is here that the world's association football gymnasts and swimming championships will be fought out in 1916. The swimming pool allows 100 metres to be swum, straightaway, the water varying from 1.5 metres to 2.3 metres in depth. On the right and left will be large spaces for the gymnastic exhibitions which make up such a large portion of the program at international meets held in Europe.

The cinderpath in the Berlin stadium on which the American runners are expected to shine, as they did at Stockholm, measures 600 metres in circumference with a 300 metre straightaway, which was so much missed at the Stockholm games. The track is said to be already the fastest in Europe, and should, of course, be even better when the time for the Olympic games rolls around three years hence. The tracks built at seven runners can run abreast in lines without a semblance of crowding. Outside of the running track there is a bicycle track of cement measuring 666 2-3 metres, on which the Olympic bicycle championship events will be ridden. The Germans plan to feature bicycle racing on their program much more than did the Swedes at Stockholm last summer. At the Swedish games there was but one bike event—a heartbreaking grind of 300 miles around Lake Malar, which kept the pedal pushers at their work for more than ten hours.

Grunewald, where the Berlin stadium is located, was formerly a forest, but is now a beautiful big park. It is reached from the center of the city by trolley cars and a fast train service in less than half an hour.

Yesterday was about circles having day or far. Who business circles have experienced, and the extreme heat seemed to aggravate the situation.

About the busiest firm in town visited by the reporter was the Taylor Hanna-James company. This firm was busy moving from its old quarters at Third and Jackson to the magnificent new building at Second and May. By this time next week, not earlier, the old house will be closed and the new one opened.

In sympathy with the high price lemons, druggists report that oil of lemons is now higher than ever before. The price is now nearly treble what it was a year ago. Then it was $1.10 now it is $3.35. This is due to the scarcity, where the great bulk of oil of lemon comes from.

For Sale—Real Estate.

BURLESON REAL ESTATE CO. Room 2, Provident Building—N. P. 2130

We have all kinds of good proposition with all parts. Their books you?

1. We have a large telephone outfit in three good Central Texas towns, fully equipped and doing a good business, and based on receipts the $25,000 price is not out of line. They have a central office building, long distance houses, well built, near the Clay St. will show that it is paying a 10 per cent dividend on $40,000. Owner's reason or selling is bad health. Will trade. Get busy.

2. We have a party with $20,000 to $25,000 cash he wants to invest in a good ranch proposition. Prefers it in Central Texas if possible, but wants us to submit our best offer. Money talks; what have you to offer?

3. What have you to trade for two houses, well built, near the Clay St. car and not far from the Cotton Pl. place? Will give or take difference. Places always rented.

4. We have a dozen parties wanting to trade property for Waco homes. If you want to trade out or sell out, tell us. One party has 640 acres of good land, and another good farm that he wants to get a fine Waco home. List your property with us.

5. Splendid suburban home, only a few blocks from the car, and the $20,000 school on Farwell Heights. This will make a fine home place or can cut into lots and you can double your money. Special price and terms if sold or traded in the next few days.

6. Who wants a large seven-room home on North 5th st. for $3,500? Take as little as $500 cash.

7. Large and elegant Austin st. home only $10,000; will take reasonable payment down, or will take trade for first payment.

8. Who wants fifty lots, most of them facing a good street, on the West side of $100 per lot? Buy this bunch and turn for good quick profit.

9. We have a good number of houses that we can sell you on easy payments, or can arrange to build you. Don't forget us if you want to buy, sell or trade, or if you want to rent a house, or have one for rent.

Talk to us any time over N. P. 2130. BURLESON REAL ESTATE CO.
